

Anthropology 451

UNC Summer Field School

in Archaeology in the Old

Catawba Nation

Lancaster County, South Carolina

May 11 - June 11, 2010

James Cook map of the Catawba Nation, 1773

UNC field school students excavating Catawba storage pits instruction from graduate assistants and other staff of the Research Laboratories of Archaeology. Students who successfully complete the course will be prepared for a variety of future research and employment opportunities, including paid positions on other archaeological projects.

Enrollment The course is open to undergraduate students and anyone with a college degree. Enrollment is limited to about 12 students, and students must apply in advance (by March 15, 2010) and obtain permission to register. Application forms are available from the Research Laboratories of Archaeology (101 Alumni Building) or <http://www.rla.unc.edu/Teaching/Fieldschool2010/>.

Tuition and Housing costs Field school participants will enroll in Anthropology 451 for 6 credit hours. Approximate tuition and fees for undergraduates total $1050.00 for North Carolina residents; $2400.00 for out-of-state residents. Housing costs are approximately $580/person.

For more information about the course, call or write Dr. Stephen Davis, Research Laboratories of Archaeology, 108 Alumni Building, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-3120 (telephone 919-962-3845; email: rpsdavis@email.unc.edu).

The 2010 Field School Join us for the 2010 investigations of Revolutionary War period Catawba Indian town sites as part of UNC's summer field school in archaeology and earn six hours of college credit that fulfill the new experiential education requirement! Our archaeological investigations will recover artifacts and reveal traces of houses and other features that document the life of these communities, and will provide important evidence about the emergence and endurance of the modern Catawba Nation.

Field school students will learn the basic techniques of archaeological excavation, as well as mapping, surveying, photography, and artifact identification. Although some classroom and laboratory instruction will be given, most of the students' time will be spent actually excavating. The course will be taught by Drs. Stephen Davis and Brett Riggs, with additional

Shoe buckle from Catawba Old Town, ca. 1780